HISTORY

THE CHÂTEAU DE SEPT-SAULX, AN ART DECO TREASURE IN THE HEART OF CHAMPAGNE

Located just a few kilometers from Reims, the Château de Sept-Saulx is one of the rare French castles built in the Art Deco style, nestled in a natural setting of forests and wetlands. Constructed between 1928 and 1930 at the initiative of Édouard Mignot, founder of the Comptoirs Français, it embodies the refinement and modernity of the interwar period. The park, designed by the renowned landscape architect Jean-Nicolas Forestier, provides a serene and majestic backdrop.

A true symbol of a family saga, the château witnessed the birth and growth of a lineage of visionary entrepreneurs. From a modest grocery store in Reims, Édouard Mignot built a retail empire with nearly 1,500 branches across France. His son Jean continued this legacy, notably creating the hypermarket of Cormontreuil (part of Reims Metropole urban community), later known as Cora.

Passed down through generations, the château remains a place of memory and tradition. Before her passing in 2020, Marie-Sybille Mignot de Villaines entrusted her family with the mission of preserving this living heritage.

In 2021, Marie-Sybille, her granddaughter, opened the estate to the public. Today, the château hosts weddings, private events, film shoots, and even the finale of the television show "Le Meilleur Boulanger de France" aired on M6.

The Château de Sept-Saulx is more than just a venue: it is a meeting place of history, elegance, and renewal, where every stone tells a story, and every visitor becomes a witness to its enduring legacy.

“

Heartfelt crush on this magnificent and exceptional place! We had a wonderful time, our wedding was sublime, and it was an unforgettable weekend.

FILMED AT THE CHÂTEAU DE SEPT-SAULX

Directed by Grégory Magne, Les Musiciens will be released in cinemas on May 7, 2025. The film was shot in April 2024 at the Château de Sept-Saulx, which served as the main setting for this elegant and emotional dramedy.

Starring Valérie Donzelli, Frédéric Pierrot, Mathieu Spinosi, Emma Ravier, Daniel Garlitsky, and Marie Vialle, the film tells the story of Astrid, who is determined to reunite four Stradivarius instruments for a one-of-a-kind concert. But between the musicians' egos and artistic tensions, nothing goes as planned.

The Château de Sept-Saulx provided a unique and refined backdrop for the shoot, blending architectural heritage with a musical atmosphere.

The Chapel

— of the Château de Sept-Saulx

AN INTIMATE ORATORY OVERLOOKING THE ESTATE.

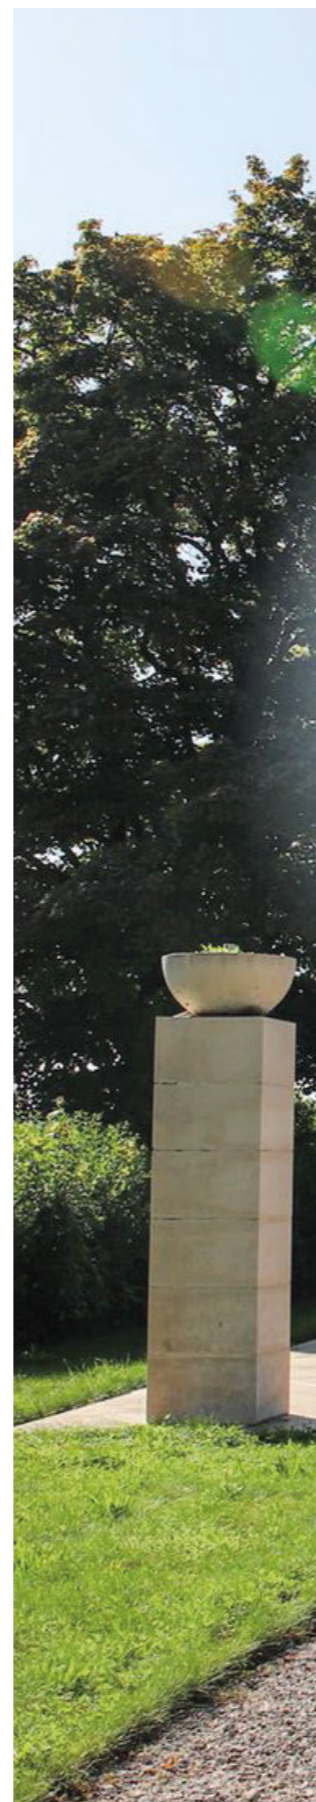

Built in 2011 by Marie-Sybille de Villaines Mignot, the chapel of the Château de Sept-Saulx is a tribute to the estate's spiritual and family legacy.

Located directly across from the château, it stands at the end of the pedestrian path once taken by Édouard Mignot's guests arriving by train. The chapel embodies the meeting of tradition and modernity, offering a refined and spiritual setting for unforgettable moments.

Dedicated to Saint Anthony of Padua, it offers a harmonious contrast between understated architecture and richly symbolic ornamentation.

Its peaceful atmosphere makes it an ideal venue for intimate ceremonies, with a capacity of up to 24 guests.
